Full List of Attribute Types (Skip to Section):

- Interest Scores
- Brand Scores
- Lifestyle Scores

General Description	ShareThis pre-built user attributes are numeric scores assigned to users in the ShareThis network, calculated and available on-demand. Each score indicates a user's interest level or affinity towards a particular subject— whether it's a product category, a specific brand, or lifestyle — based on engagement and actions taken on global web pages.
How It Works	ShareThis collects consented pseudonymous behavioral data through our engagement tools on over 600M global web pages. We then use the latest NLP and machine learning technologies to extract the contextual meaning of websites and content, capturing only relevant intent signals associated with specific verticals and categories. We then calculate and assign an interest score to every user through data science techniques based on their engagement with these web pages. The average score for each category is always one, and it doesn't change. Scores below 1 represent lower than average interest and identify light-interest users. Scores above 1 represent higher than average interest and identify high-interest users. Zero scores show users with no demonstrated interest in that specific category. The same user might get a 2.3 interest score for makeup, a 14.2 interest score for shampoo, and a 0.05 interest score for batteries. This indicates, for example, that the user has 14.2 times higher interest in shampoo than the average user in this product category.

Product Datasheet

Description	Lifestyle scores are numeric scores assigned to users in the ShareThis network. It reflects a user's overall engagement with web pages containing relevant content to various lifestyle categories indicating the type of lives they live.
Categories	Click here to see the full list of pre-built lifestyle categories available.
How It Works	ShareThis collects consented pseudonymous behavioral data through our engagement tools on over 600M global web pages. We then use advanced NLP to extract the contextual meaning of websites and their content, capturing only relevant signals associated with specific lifestyle categories. We then use embedding models to calculate and assign a score to every user based on their engagement with these web pages. The average score for each category is always one, and it doesn't change. Scores below 1 represent lower than average interest and identify light-interest users. Scores above 1 represent higher than average interest and identify high-interest users. Zero scores show users with no demonstrated interest in that specific category. The same user might get a 2.3 lifestyle score for do-it-yourself, a 14.2 lifestyle score for cooking, and a 0.05 lifestyle score for new parents. This indicates, for example, that the user has a 14.2 times higher interest in cooking than the average user in this lifestyle category.
